ARE SEARCHING FOR SANFORD P. HAYNER

Relatives of Former Rock County Man Who Disappeared From Lake Forest Saturday Are Much Alarmed.
Sanford P. Hayner, aged 72, a former engineer on the North-Western road who was born and spent his boyhood days on a farm in Rock county, wandered away from the home of his son, Fred, in Lake Forest, Ill., Saturday night. He is afflicted with senile dementia. It is thought by his Chicago relatives that he may have wandered back to the scenes of his boyhood either here or in Green county. His son, Frank P. Hayner of Chicago, has written to Miss Hayner of this city, a cousin of the missing man, asking him to look out for and aid his relatives in locating him.
Mr. Hayner disappeared about 7 o'clock last Sunday a posse of one hundred citizens of Lake Forest made a futile search for him in the woods and ravines within a radius of a mile or more from the home. On Monday the district north from Fort Sheridan to Lake Bluff, including Lake Forest, was scoured by two companies of regulars from the fort in a skirmish drill, going north and south first and then criss-crossing east and west.
George Rice, a Footville friend, has also been notified to watch out for him. The aid of the Chief and Assistant Chief of Police of Chicago have been secured and notices with descriptions of Mr. Hayner have been sent to Janesville and other cities. The description given is as follows:
Sanford P. Hayner—72 years old; about 5 feet 8 in. tall; weight about 125 to 135 lbs.; stooped with age; hair a dirty white and very little of it; lets it grow long on one side and combs it over the top of his head; mustache almost white; dark brown eyes; had not been shaved for a week; probably unable to say much about himself in his condition of senile dementia. He was dressed in an old pair of black pants, badly discolored; had on a nearly new navy blue vest; an old sack coat; a good pair of shoes and when last seen he wore no hat. He is exceedingly weak in his legs and stumbles because of this weakness.
Mr. Hayner is a son of the late Andrew J. Hayner, who owned a farm in Rock county fifty years ago. It was on this farm that the old gentleman lived in his youth, prior to moving to Woodstock and entering the railroad business.
Arrangements have been made with the North-Western road, whereby if Mr. Hayner is found on one of the trains he will be carried to the next station and turned over to the authorities.

MONUMENT TO FIRST EXECUTIVE OF IOWA

Shaft Dedicated To Ansel Briggs In Little Country Cemetery Where His Body Lies.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Mason City, Ia., Sept. 22.—The memory of Ansel Briggs, Iowa's first governor and whose name is inseparably interwoven with the early history of the state, was honored today in the unveiling of a monument in the Little Country cemetery, north of this place, where his remains were recently buried after removal from their original resting place in Omaha. The dedication exercises were carried out under the auspices of the Jackson County Historical society and were attended by a number of state officials, members of the Iowa legislature and other persons of prominence. The memorial was unveiled by Mrs. Alexander D. Robertson of Cherokee County, a granddaughter of Governor Briggs.
Ansel Briggs was governor of Iowa from 1846 to 1850. He was a native of Vermont, but as a young man he removed with his parents to Ohio, where he became interested in establishing and operating stage lines. In 1836 he removed from Ohio to Jackson County, Iowa, where he continued to interest himself in stage lines. During the territorial period he held a number of contracts for carrying the United States mail in Iowa.
In 1842 he was elected to the house of representatives of the Territory of Iowa, and four years later he was nominated by the Democrats for the office of governor of Iowa. His election took place in October of the same year. On December 3, 1846, he was inaugurated as the first governor of the state of Iowa. For some time after the expiration of his term of office he continued to reside in the town of Andrew, but in 1870 he removed to Council Bluffs. He died at the home of his son in Omaha, May 5, 1881, and was buried in that city. The last general assembly of Iowa appropriated $1,000 for the removal of Governor Briggs' remains to his old home in Andrew and for the erection of a memorial over the grave.

ENGINES COLLIDED AT NEW YARDS LAST NIGHT

Accidents on North-Western Last Night and This Morning Do Much Damage.
Two accidents, an engine collision and a derailment, occurred on the North-Western last night and this morning, and although they did not result in any fatalities, caused much damage and interrupted traffic considerably.
The collision happened last night about twelve o'clock at the new yards. Engine 1406, which was being taken from the roundhouse for service on a stock train, struck the north-end way-freight engine, number 648, which was switching in the yards. Both engines were badly damaged and the accident made it necessary for the wrecking gang to work until morning before the tracks could be cleared.
The second mishap occurred this morning at eight o'clock, when a box-car broke loose from a switch-engine 1170 on a sidetrack in the rear of Southwaukeem warehouse on W. Milwaukee street. The switch-engine left the track and tipped off several rails besides tearing up a number of ties. The engine was replaced on the rails after half an hour's work.

Styles in Dogota.

In Venezuela everybody that is anybody has been in Paris and speaks French, while here (Dogota), one hears very little about Paris, although it is evident that the ladies patronize Parisian dressmakers. Their dresses, coming by parcels post, are somewhat crumpled in the mail, but it is the fashion to allow the crumple to remain as silent witnesses of the foreign origin of the garments.

LIES IN STATE IN CAPITOL ROTUNDA

BODY OF GOV. JOHNSON VIEWED
BY THOUSANDS AT ST.
PAUL.

TO BE BURIED AT ST. PETER.

Prominent Men of Both Political Parties Pay High Tribute to Dead Statesman's Civic Virtues and Great Public Usefulness.

COMMENTS OF PROMINENT MEN ON JOHNSON'S DEATH

President Taft—"He was a wonderful man. That a man of his capacity for great public usefulness should be taken now, at the age of 48, should be, and is, a source of national regret, for, had Gov. Johnson lived, his position in the state and country was such that he certainly would have been called upon to fill an important place and to assist in the progressive movements of which he was a constant advocate.

William J. Bryan—"Gov. Johnson's career illustrates the possibilities of American citizenship, and his death is a great loss to our party and the country. His civic virtues won for him a host of admirers and his personal qualities converted his admirers into friends.

Clark Howell, member of the Democratic national executive committee, Georgia—"Gov. Johnson's death still further complicates the confusion of the Democracy. Had he lived in all probability he would have been the presidential nominee next time,
with many elements of unusual strength. He might have united the party.

Congressman Champ Clark, Missouri—"I regret exceedingly to hear of the death of Gov. Johnson.
He was a man of high character,
sterling ability and great promise.

Gov. Deneen, Illinois—"I am deeply grieved to hear of the death of Gov. Johnson. I met him on several occasions and became greatly attached to him. His strong personality won the good will and respect of those with whom he came into contact. The story of the struggle of his early life is one of the classics of our political literature.

Thomas R. Marshall, Governor
of Indiana—"The life of John A.
Johnson discloses again the wonderful possibilities for the making of real success in America. Many have been able to succeed for a little while, politically; many have been loud in their protestations of belief in our system of government; it has been the few who were always conscious of the rights of others that have lived in history and have influenced the republic for good. Among this select few will ever be John A. Johnson.

Roger C. Sullivan, Democratic national committeeman, Illinois—"Democracy has lost one of its foremost leaders in the death of Gov.
Johnson. He was a big man in every sense of the word and was considered presidential timber.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 22.—The body of Gov. Johnson lies in state in the rotunda of the state capitol until late this afternoon, when it will be taken to St. Peter, where it will be interred in a grave beside that of his mother.
Thousands of people from all walks of life passed by the bier during the day to pay their last respects to the dead statesman.

From the hour that the governor's death was first publicly announced by the tolling of a school bell in Iowa, all usual public activity was abandoned. All banks, stores and offices were closed and the buildings
draped in black and purple crepe.

Gov. Johnson's body was escorted to the special Chicago Great Western train by a throng of citizens from every walk of life. On the train were Mrs. Johnson, a few of her personal friends, state officers and friends of the late governor. As the cortege passed down the street leading to the station the escort lined up on either side, with bare heads and the hundreds of people around the depot
showed a like respect.

Body Reaches St. Paul.

Upon its arrival in St. Paul the train was met by detachments of all the local companies of the National Guard and an escort of police. In spite of a heavy downpour of rain thousands of people swarmed around the train and the procession to the state capitol, with the militia acting as escort, was witnessed by thousands of people. The body was placed in the rotunda at the capitol, where it will lie in state until this afternoon.
Four commissioned officers of the National Guard, four sergeants, four corporals and four privates will stand guard by the casket until its removal from the capitol. Rev. J. J. Lawler, chaplain of the governor's staff, will conduct services in the capitol. Thursday the body will be taken to St.
Peter, where final services will be held under Presbyterian auspices, with Rev.
R. E. Clarke in charge. Interment will be in the family cemetery at St.
Peter, where Gov. Johnson is to be buried beside his mother. Honorary escorts will be state officers, the St.
Paul lodge of Elks, and the Knights of Pythias, who will accompany the special train to St. Peter.

Adolph O. J. Burkhart was sworn in as governor of the state of Minnesota
by Chief Justice Start of the supreme court.

Immediately following the death of Gov. Johnson.

The installation of Gov. Elberhardt was without ceremony or incident.
Senator E. A. Smith of Minneapolis, who was president pro tem. of the state senate, becomes lieutenant governor, but at his request the formality of swearing him into office was postponed until later.

TAFT UPHOLDS THE TAX LAW

PRESIDENT SAYS CORPORATION
ASSESSMENT IS PREFERABLE
TO INCOME MEASURE.

URGES STATES TO ADOPT IT

Secretary Baillinger Joins Taft at Denver and Holds Conference on the Pinchot Controversy Over Conservation of National Resources.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 22.—President Taft took up the corporation tax passed as a part of the Payne tariff law in his speech at the Auditorium
last night and defended it as against the proposition to impose a direct income tax, which, he said, seemed likely to pass the senate when the corporation tax was planned as a compromise. To make an income tax possible in time of need, the president strongly urged that all the states should adopt the proposed amendment to the constitution.

The president declared that the corporation tax was in itself the best form of income tax that could be levied and pointed out that it contained many of the best features of the income tax law of England. He said he opposed a direct income tax except in cases of emergency and he believed it to be a prime fault in the federal constitution that no provision is made for a direct levy to meet war time or other extraordinary expenses.

Decision Prevents Tax on Bonds.

Mr. Taft declared that it was the supreme court decision declaring unconstitutional the income tax law passed by a Democratic congress some years ago that prevented the leaders in congress during the session recently closed from including in the corporation tax measure a provision for a levy upon bonds and bondholders.
To tax bonds would result in the reduction of the rate of interest and hence this resulted in a direct tax upon the individual holders of the bonds and came in contact with the decision of the court that no direct tax could be levied by the national government without the resulting apportionment of the proceeds among the states.

The president based his argument in favor of the corporation tax, as compared to the direct income tax, almost entirely upon the results of the income tax in England.

Not a Direct Levy.

He pointed out that the tax there is not a direct levy, such as was recently defeated in the senate only through a compromise, but that it laid the tax upon the income before it came into the hands of the individual. The English tax is levied first on the declared dividends of corporations, secondly on rents before leaving the hands of the tenant, and thirdly on the individual directly. It was found in England that a direct income tax at ten per cent did not produce as much revenue as the present method of taxation at five per cent. This he declared illustrated the premium that the direct tax places upon perjury and concealment.

It is a question, the president declared, whether incomes earned salaries and from professional work should be taxed as heavily as incomes derived from investments or not taxed at all. The latter, he said, was the effect of the corporation tax.

Mr. Taft touched briefly on the tariff, saying that while a revision had been deemed essential, there was also a deficit in the treasury to be met.

Mr. Taft was joined here by the secretary of the interior, Baillinger, who will accompany him on a part of the trip through the far northwest.
It is likely that the president desired
a further conference with Mr. Ballinger, whose conduct of the interior department he recently upheld in a long letter called out by the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, before making a final exposition of the aims and objects of this administration as to the conservation of the resources.

Agreement.

New York, Sept. 22.—William K.
Vanderbilt, Jr., donor of the Vanderbilt cup for automobile races, and his

Vanderbilt reaches New York. Efforts of Mrs. O. H. Belmont, mother of Mr. Vanderbilt, and Mrs. Harman Colclough, sister of Mrs. Vanderbilt, to avert the separation were without success.

pany to accede to the demands made by the employees for increased wages

A New Root Parasite.

A new parasite which attacks the vine at the root was discovered at the Academy des Sciences by M. Guignard, chief of the College of Pharmacy. It is designated "clandestine," as it is quite invisible in general, as that it is all the more dangerous. The parasite is believed to be a fungus of the phanerogam family. Experiments upon it are being continued at the biological laboratory of Nantes.

Makes Body Magnet Nerves Like Steel

Remarkable Discovery That Gives Intense Nerve Strength by Electric Current Through the Body.

Now Obtainable At Drug Stores and Absolutely Guaranteed.

Wonder of wonders, will they ever forget the years of suffering they have endured since they were first afflicted with this curse? No scientific man would deny the fact, but the mystery has been long to apply it for medical purposes to produce the best results. It is now no longer a mystery.

Now come the Electrodes which turn the human body into a magnet so that the current cannot be felt even by the person who is using them, yet producing such powerful forces as to cure the most obstinate nervous "whiplashes" and put an end to some of the most obstinate diseases.

The simplicity of Electrodes, as well as their results, are almost incredible.
They have an astonishing effect on nerve weakness, brain fog, loss of attention, confusion and every loss of memory and especially on nervous prostration. For rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney trouble, back ache, weak heart, liver and stomach troubles they have already wrought wonders.

Electrodes are worn in the shoes.
Aside from this they bear no resemblance to any device you have ever seen or heard about. You never know you have them on, and they are for use at all other times.
They make no current until both shoes are put on.
Then they make a magnet of the body, with the nerves for conducting wires and a vital glow of electrical force seems to be distributed over
the whole body, giving vigor and strength which is remarkable.

To make this statement good every pair of Electrodes are sold with a legal binding contract
that you are to be fully satisfied at the end of 30 days, or your money
will be refunded.
Electrodes are sold at your drugstore at $1.00 a pair, and if you are not satisfied with them according to contract your money will be cheerfully refunded. If your drugstore does not have Electrodes on hand,
send $1.00 to the Electrodes Company, Suite 10, Holland Block, Lima, Ohio, and you will get a pair by return mail with a signed contract to fully satisfy you or your money refunded. Say whether for lady or gentleman.

Ask Her This Question

"Do you know of any woman who ever received any benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

If any woman who is suffering with any ailment peculiar to her sex will ask her neighbors this question, she will be surprised at the result. There is hardly a community in this country where women cannot be found who have been restored to health by this famous old remedy, made exclusively from a simple formula of roots and herbs.

During the past 30 years we have published thousands of letters from these grateful women who have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never in all that time have we published a testimonial without the writer's special permission. Never have we knowingly published a testimonial that was not truthful and genuine.
Here is one just received a few days ago. If anyone doubts that this is a true and honest statement of a woman's experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound write and ask her.

Houston, Texas.—"When I first began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had been sick for three years with female troubles, chronic dyspepsia, and a liver trouble. I had tried several doctor's medicines, but nothing did me any good.

"For three years I lived on medicines and thought I would never get well, when I read an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and was advised to try it.

"My husband got me one bottle of the Compound, and it did me so much good I continued its use. I am now a well woman and enjoy the best of health.

"I advise all women suffering from such troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. They won't regret it, for it will surely cure you."—Mrs. Beale L. Hicks, 819 Cleveland St., Houston.

Any woman who is sick and suffering is foolish surely not to give such a medicine as this a trial. Why should it not do her as much good as it did Mrs. Hicks.

Five Satisfied Users of Hot Water Heating Plants

They are most economical in the end and cost but little more than a furnace to install.
My booklet, "Successful House Heating" says that you can heat a

7-room house at $275 to $325.
10-room house at $425 to $500.

Dear Sir: The Capitol Sec-

stores and quite a ways from sides. But as I have just said the No. 718 Capitol has done the work perfectly satisfactory,

EYES THAT SEE

People who are at all interested in the blind have noticed that they enjoy the theatre, the circus and many other amusements with apparently as keen a relish as their more fortunate companions with sight.

This is because they possess in rare degree what is known as the "sixth sense." The eye of the blind dilates and throws upon the canvas of imagination pictures, which are so intensely real, that the blind man speaks of seeing with the same confidence as though he had sight.

One of the brightest men in public life today is Senator Gore, the blind representative from Oklahoma. His speech before the senate last summer was a revelation, for every statement made was backed by figures and statistics so reliable that his arguments could not be controverted. The following brief sketch of this remarkable man, from the current issue of the American Magazine, will be read with interest:

"Most interested of all the statesmen watching the summer flights of the Wright brothers, near Washington, was blind Senator Gore of Oklahoma. 'Watching' was the word he used. He complained, too, that the flights conflicted with the baseball games which he wanted to 'see'."

"This sort of thing is not affection. It illustrates the extent to which this blind man has developed a sixth sense. A word in his ear enables him to reconstruct the picture or scene before him as a scientist builds an extinct animal from a fossil tooth. Mrs. Gore, the senator's devoted wife, is usually at his side to supply the word. Through her eyes he 'saw' the aeroplane. Through her eyes he 'reads' the newspapers, law, literature, and political economy."

"But do not picture Senator Gore in any helpless, clinging fashion. He is the youngest member of the United States senate and one of its prominent members and ablest debaters while still in his thirty-ninth year. He achieved this himself. His affliction brought him some helpful consideration, some unusual attention, doubtless, but he neither needs nor asks for favors on account of it."

"Born in Mississippi, in a family of moderate circumstances, Senator Gore lost his eyesight through a boyhood accident. As the light gradually faded he called up every bit of grit in his system to meet the appalling situation. He did not let his affliction interrupt his school work for a day. In school his fellow students read the text-book pages to him once, and he listened to the lectures. One hearing was sufficient. At twenty-six he was practicing law in Texas. He was able, at thirty, to marry Miss Nina Kay, a Texas girl. His experiences had been that of the average young lawyer. When, at thirty-one, he moved to Oklahoma, the young man found his element. The territory was in process of becoming a state and politics fairly hummed. One night William Jennings Bryan was late for a speech at Muskogee and a man named Gore was put up at eight o'clock to hold the crowd. At midnight Gore was still holding that crowd, which had all but forgotten Bryan."

"In person Senator Gore is of medium height, broad shouldered and well built, with a plump, youthful face and yellow hair. When he speaks he has a trick of holding a bit of paper in his hand, which he seems to consult. 'Glad to see you,' is his greeting."

PRESIDENT TAFT NOT A RULER

"Something has been said here tonight about the ruler and the ruled. And it always gives me goose-flesh, I am not a ruler."—The President at Minneapolis, Sept. 18, 1933.
"On his western trip Mr. Taft has now said two things that are most grateful to the feelings and convictions of a hopeful people.
"One is that the Taft administration is not here to 'hurt' the industries of the country. The other is that Mr. Taft does not regard himself as a ruler."

"Thus the president has twice repudiated the imputation of undue power.
"This is refreshing. It is also everlastingly right.
"We have heard enough and too much from the White House in recent years of 'my policy,' 'my ambassador,' and even 'my people.'"

"And yet, we know, this people is not anybody's people. It belongs to itself. It gives no man ownership rights in office. It merely lends him temporary power for convenience's sake."

"The sovereign power of this nation is in all its people collectively, and nowhere else. It is exercised by representatives chosen by the people. It has no source or sanction save in the people's will, expressed in the manner provided by themselves."

"This fact lies at the bottom of all our laws and is their vital spirit."

"Mr. Taft does well to disavow any imputation that the President of the United States holds office by any temporary power for convenience's sake."

"In so doing Mr. Taft calls attention to a fundamental new-world truth and puts down a destructive old-world error."

This editorial from the Chicago Inter Ocean defines clearly the president's attitude. His predecessor possessed the faculty of impressing the thought that his word was authority on all questions, and when he classed a man as an "undesirable citizen" the verdict was affirmed without examination or trial.

His say on all public issues had the ring of authority, and the people generally accepted his judgment without question. This kind of leadership may be all right for a time, but the nation will profit by the more conservative policy of President Taft.

Cook has arrived in New York and his rival will soon be on the ground prepared to contest honors. There ought to be glory enough for two in the discovery and there will certainly be no protest from citizens of the much-discovered pole country. Both men have suffered enough in the way of hardship to entitle them to a distribution of honors and fireworks.

The Oklahoma bank guarantee law is hardly worth the time and expense of investigating. It is an impractical measure which Wisconsin can afford to let alone. The state is already burdened with a primary law and a lot of other fads incidental to representative government. Time to halt on now reforms.

The new state park in Door county recently purchased by the State Park commission includes 3,700 acres of land. It will be improved and converted into a public playground. Senator Stephenson is much interested in the project, and will contribute liberally for its support.

Something radical must be done by the people of Janesville if the city is to grow. Efforts are being made to induce some of our factories to locate elsewhere. We have none to lose, and every encouragement should be offered to retain what we have.

With 300 passenger trains running daily, carrying 27,000,000 passengers last year, the Chicago and North-Western Railway company report that not a single death occurred from accident during the year. That's a good record.

Thirty-six hours of continuous performance on the piano is the record of a boy down in Indiana. That sort of an endurance test must have been hard on the neighbors.

Uncle Walt

THE POET PHILOSOPHER
By WALT MASON
(Copyright, 1933, by George Mathew Adams.)

I know of a man who is smiling, all day, like a basket of green peas; the mirth in his face is THE SMILING begonia—he beats all the grinning man-children. He smiles, for it brings him the money—how's boss of a prominent store; some say that he wouldn't be sunny, if he found that it paid him no more. He smiles at the maiden, the charmer, who to his companion smiles; he smiles at the honest old farmer, who comes to trade butter for milk; he smiles on the kid with a penny who asks for a section of gum; he'd smile on the beggar, if any should to his establishment come. When done is the day, with its labors, he home to his menial repairs; and I am informed by his neighbors, who watch him from peepholes of theirs, that he is a regular gorilla, who snarls at his children and wife; some day, with a bludgeon of willow, they'll knock all the smiles from his life. This smiling, that's boasted so often, is surely an excellent graft; alas for the heart that won't soften, for the fellow who never has laughed! It's good to be cheery and winning, with laughter as light as the foam, and fine to do some of your grinning with children and mother at home.

A SHROUDED FIRMAMENT

(By a Banker.)
How fortunate it is that this earth has but one satellite to illumine the night. For, however striking and beautiful the spectacle might be of six or eight brilliant moons, some large, some small, sometimes clustered together, sometimes scattered in various parts of the heavens, and shining with varied degrees of brilliancy; yet had we, like Saturn, ten satellites or like Jupiter eight, astronomy would be, in great measure, an unknown science; and, except on those extremely rare occasions when the whole of the satellites were clustered in the skies of one hemisphere, the glories of the midnight sky would be invisible; the scintillating constellations would scarce ever delight us with their grandeur and their beauty; the planets, except perhaps occasionally the brightest amongst them, would never be seen; comets would come within our range, their lustrous, translucent magnificence and grandeur veiled from view by the many orbed lunar illuminations; and the brilliant displays of "shooting stars" which occasionally provide such a gorgeous and sublime pageant, appearing as though the stars of heaven were falling from their courses, and the stellar universe itself were being wrecked, would never be visible.

And, too, the many other wonders of the stellar world—the variable stars ever waxing and waning in brilliancy; those other universes sunk deep in the profundities of the abyss of space, almost, but not quite, beyond the revealing power of the eagle eye of the telescope; the numerous burning stars whose fires are kindled in so many varied hues—some carmine, some a brilliant sulphur yellow, some a glowing azure, some a vivid emerald or lustrous aquamarine, or some a delicate rose-pink, or a deep orange, with the many other wonders and marvels of the midnight sky—all these bewitching and fascinating splendours would be hidden from our view, shrouded and obscured by the ever splendid overpowering light of those numerous satellites.

But happily we have but one moon—a lovely orb which though it so delights us during her varied phases, yet fortunately disappears at regular intervals from view. Surely this is another instance of the sollecitude of the Creator in making this favored earth so complete in all that conduces to the welfare and the happiness of its inhabitants. And yet, alas, they are so ungrateful that multitudes not only ignore Him, but even refuse, or neglect, to accept the great explanation made by Him on Golgotha, although for each one of those who supplicates Him for pardon and eternal life, those agonies which He endured are reckoned as complete satisfaction for their misdeeds. Oh! earth, earth, earth, surely at the Great Day those famous dwellers amidst thy beauty who have ignored their Creator will bitterly rue their folly.

White House Dinners.
Some one has been going back to the good old times and comparing the White House dinners of the days of the fathers with those of the present. The difference is marked, and in favor of the dinners of today. A recent White House dinner took 87 minutes. Your ancient dinner at the executive mansion, back in the earlier administration, began at eight and wound up after midnight. The tables groaned and the stomachs of the guests groaned under the weight of rich dishes and choice liquors. It took a strong man to escape the need of assistance home after the function was over. Three have charged.

PE-RU-NA USED FOR KIDNEY CATARRH.

Gen. A. F. Hawley, of Washington, D. C., writes: "I have used Pe-runa and find it very beneficial for kidney trouble, and especially good for coughs, colds and catarrhal troubles."

Kidney Trouble for Nearly Thirty Years.
William Bailey, Post Col. Eng. No. 69, Union Veteran Legion, and prominently identified with many of the great labor protective associations in Chicago and New York, and secretary of one of the largest associations in the former city, had for nearly thirty years been afflicted with kidney troubles.

Within a short period he has been persuaded to try Peruna, and his present healthy condition is attributed to his judicious use of that great remedy. Washington climate is notoriously bad for kidney and liver troubles, yet by a judicious use of the remedy he is now quite cured and in excellent physical condition.
This brief statement of facts, without exaggeration or hyperbole, appears to tell the whole story, which the Peruna Company is authorized to use, if it so chooses, believing, as I do, that by so doing it will be for the general good.
William Bailey, 581 S. N. B., Washington, D. C.
The same. A few bottles built up her health and strength.
"I took Peruna for a cold which settled in my kidneys, giving me much pain. In two weeks I was much better, and in a few months I was well."
For Liver and Kidneys.
Mr. W. H. Armstrong, Cumberland, C. H., Va., writes:
"Your Peruna has cured me of chronic catarrh of long standing. I thank you so much for your advice. I think it is a great medicine. It will do all that you recommend it to do. Besides, I can recommend it to cure all liver and kidney troubles."
Chronic Kidney Trouble.
Judge C. J. Park, R. F. D. 1, Buckhead, Ga., writes:
"For a long time I was troubled with catarrh of the kidneys, and after taking Peruna I feel like a new man. I think it the greatest catarrh medicine of the age, and believe it will cure any case of catarrh on record."

Heart to Heart Talks.

THE TOP STORY.

Darwin tells us that in early life he was fond of music and poetry, especially Shakespeare.

But he did not cultivate this appreciation. He concentrated all his powers on the study of nature and finally lost his taste for music and harmony. In his later life he expressed his regret that this was so.

He had become calloused. There was nothing in his soul to respond to the appeal.

Which fact contains a lesson.

One may harden his soul against the best things of life by giving his entire attention to other things.

For instance—

One may become absorbed wholly in making money and thus leave neglected his highest thoughts and noblest emotions. He who does this does not deliberately choose to shut the door on his divine side. He neglects to cultivate the noblest things. By and by they make no appeal to him. His tastes have changed.

A woman may give her days and nights to social diversions so completely as to take all her time and energies. She does not purposely choose to forget the better side of life. She simply neglects to cultivate that side of herself. After a time she no longer responds to the appeal of the higher influences. She becomes sordid; indurated; calloused.

If we are to be the best and do the best we must think the best, feel the best, not the best.

Any other kind of living has its dangers.

The man or woman who falls and falls under some temptation is not suddenly corrupted. The character has become slowly weakened by the shutting out of good influences. The best has lost its appeal.

Do not think lightly of these facts. You have not lived in such a way as to make the right choice, put down the temptation, meet the crisis.

Henry Ward Beecher once said in substance:

"Man is a three storied house. His animal part is the basement, where his passions crawl. There is the first story, the intellectual. Most men live altogether in these two stories—the animal and the intellectual. But there is another story which is the best of all, the second story—the spiritual. Men furnish and furnish their basement and their first story, but let the top story go, as if it were an abandoned attic."

Let us live some part of our days in the top story.

Let us open the doors to the divinest part of us.

Else, after a time, what is best will make no appeal.

Densest Form of Matter.
The densest form of matter is now understood to be neither continuous nor homogeneous, but full of holes. In a late Royal Institution lecture, Sir James Thomson showed how hydrogen can be passed into a vacuum tube through an incandescent platinum window; and the passage of sodium through glass in a similar manner is utilized in the manufacture of high-vacuum tubes as a means of absorbing the traces of oxygen that cannot be pumped out. An Italian physicist has passed hydrogen through iron even when cold.

Human Encyclopedia Failed.
If there is one man in congress who is supposed to know everything it is Senator Winthrop Murray Crane of Massachusetts. He is one of the walking encyclopedias of the Aldrich party and was the hub of the campaign of the allies before the Chicago convention. Those who have set a heavy store by Senator Crane's knowledge of things and events received a decided shock recently when the senator calmly stood in front of the White House and, gazing across the street at the monumental statue, war and navy building, asked: "Which is the war department?"

IDEALS AND ATTAINMENT.
When I started out in life, I earnestly desired to be of use in this world. To be able in some way to add to the sum total of human happiness. I have no regrets to mention because I chose Dentistry as my field of labor.

Some things about my work are unpleasant, it is true, but there are very many pleasant things to compensate. For instance:

There are two ways in which I can be of real help to people.

I can add to their personal attractiveness by beautifying the teeth.

I can add to every one's length of life by supplying new nature's most valuable gifts, namely: the teeth with which to eat and maintain our existence.

I suppose some of my work in the twenty years of my practice I would not be very proud of, at this time, but I am equally certain that I have put out a great deal of work which I shall always view with pride.

A normal man profits by his failures and improves next time.

And I know that right now I am doing the finest dental work of my life. And with the least pain to my patients.

Come in and let me demonstrate.

INDEPENDENT PHONE CO. TO REORGANIZE

Three New Directors Will Be Elected Next Tuesday to Take Places of Retiring Stockholders.

There will be a reorganization of the Rock County Telephone Co. directors at a meeting to be held next Tuesday evening. Victor P. Richardson, Francis Grant, and W. F. Parker, three of the five directors, have resigned of their stock and their places will be filled by the new owners. J. L. Bostwick and H. D. Mardeck and their new associates in the management will elect a secretary to succeed Francis Grant.

The 15 shares of stock which changed hands were sold at $12.50 per share, according to Richard Valantine, and the amount available at a premium of $12.50 was over-subscribed by nearly $2,000. The $10,000 deal was swung in about three days.

The company is hanging a new cable from the office, along River and School streets, to the Fourth ward school and as soon as this is completed will install another on North Bluff street.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Tennis Players Here: W. R. Bardeen, C. L. Cullen, W. P. Mahbitt, L. C. Whitte, and R. F. Wright of Edgerton came down from Edgerton yesterday to play a return match with the tennis players who went to Edgerton recently. On account of the weather the games were postponed.

Beloit Cases: District Attorney Fisher was busy in Beloit on Monday with the prosecution of two cases in the municipal court. The Anderson wife abandonment case was taken up in the afternoon and the case of the State vs. Peter Savolien for using abusive language was continued until this morning at ten o'clock.

Had Narrow Escape: William Ford of the firm of Ford & Bous narrowly missed being struck by a falling derrick while at work at the new building which the firm is putting up for the Wisconsin Carriage company. A guy rope which held up the derrick broke, let it down suddenly. A number of workmen who were standing nearby had narrow escapes from being struck.

Church Mortgage Filed: A mortgage on eight lots in McGovern's addition to the city of Beloit owned by the St. Jude's parish was recorded at the register of deeds office yesterday. The mortgage is in favor of the Beloit Savings Bank as security for the payment of $10,000. The money will probably be used in the erection of the new Catholic church.

Whitehead to Speak: Senator John M. Whitehead will represent the Janesville Congregational church at the annual state convention which is to be held at Appleton October 5, 6 and 7. Mr. Whitehead will speak on "The Ministry and Possibilities of the Layman's Movement" at the sessions which will be held October 7.

Brought Home New Auto: Mr. and Mrs. Will Drummond and Dave Drummond went to Chicago yesterday and made the return trip in the new Ford touring car which Mr. Drummond has purchased. Despite the bad condition of the roads and the mud, they made the journey overland from Chicago in five hours.

Mayor to Be Leader: Mayor William F. Carlo will preside over the initial meeting of the Twilight Club, the first Tuesday evening in October, and lead the discussion of Deep Waterways.

Underwent Operation: John Newbauer underwent a successful operation for hernia at Mercy hospital and was reported to be doing nicely this afternoon.

Austria and later completed it in the States. His first diplomatic appointment was in 1896, when he took up the work of second secretary of the American legation in Tokyo. New Electric Wiring.
For installations for small consumers in houses, two new systems of electric wiring are in use in Europe. The Kuhlows system employs wires wrapped round with thin brass or copper covering ordinary rubber-insulated conductors. The wires can easily be bent round corners, and are fastened to the wall with small clips. The Stanros system presents even smaller wires, wrapped in a similar manner. They are very flexible, and are so small that they can be run over the surface or along a cornice, so as to be practically invisible.

Electroplating Without Immersion.
It is sometimes desirable to electroplate a part only of some object, or the character of the object is such that it is impracticable to immerse it in the solution. The "sponge plater" makes this work easy of accomplishment and the result is very satisfactory. The device consists of a split spool holder in a glass tube, a sponge being inserted in the open end of the tube and the other end of the tube bearing a rubber bulb with which to produce suction in the tube.

BORT, BAILEY & COMPANY

"She was at his house in Paris," Margaret said, quite unable to keep her own counsel now. "It was when I was at Versailles."

"You don't say so? Are you sure of that?"

"He admitted it when I was talking to him through the telephone, and I heard her speaking to him in a language I did not understand."

"Did you really? Well, well!" Mr. Van Torp was beginning to be puzzled again. "Nice voice, hasn't she?"

"Yes. He tried to make me think he wasn't sure whether the creature was a boy or a girl."

"Maybe he wasn't sure himself," suggested the American, but the tone in which she had spoken the word "creature" had not escaped him.

He was really trying to put the case in a fair light, and was not at all unreasoning in his attempt to do so. "That was clear enough now. How far she might go he could not tell, but what she had just said, coupled with the way in which she spoke of the man to whom she was engaged as 'monsieur Logothetis,' made it quite evident that she was profoundly incensed against him, and Van Torp became more than ever anxious not to do anything underhand."

"Look here," he said, "I'm going to tell you something. I took a sort of interest in that farrier girl the only time I saw her. I don't know why. I dare say I was taken in by her—just ordinary 'taken in,' like a tenderfoot, I gave her that fellow's address in New York. He nodded his head towards Kralinsky. 'When I found he was here, I wired Logothetis to tell her, since she's after him. I suppose I thought Logothetis would go right ahead and find her, and get more hazy up with her than ever. It was mean of me, wasn't it? That's why I've told you. You see, I didn't know anything about all this, and that makes it meaner still, doesn't it?"

Possibly if he had told her these facts 48 hours earlier she might have been annoyed, but at present they seemed to be rather in his favor. At all events he was frank, she thought. He declared war on his rival, and meant to fight according to the law of nations. Lady Maud would not be his friend, if he was playing any double game, but she had stuck to him throughout his trouble in the spring. He had emerged victorious and reinstated in public opinion, and she had been right. Lady Maud knew him better than any one else, and she was a good woman, if there ever was one.

Yet he had accused himself of having acted "meanly." Margaret did not like the word, and threw up her head as a horse does when a beginner holds on by the curb.

"You need not make yourself out worse than you are," she answered. "I want to start fair," said the millionaire, "and I'd rather give my impression before than get worse. The only real trouble with Lucifer was he started too high up."

This singular statement was made with perfect gravity, and without the slightest humorous intention, but Margaret laughed for the first time that day, in spite of the storm that was still raging in the near distance of her thoughts.

"Why do you laugh?" asked Van Torp. "It's quite true. I don't want to start too high up in your estimation and then be turned down as unfit for the position at the end of the first week. Put me where I belong and I won't disappoint you. Say I was doing something that wasn't exactly low-down, considering the object, but that mightn't pass muster at an honor parade, anyhow. And then any that I've admitted the fact, if you like, and that the better I know, if you like, I want to do anything mean. It won't be hard for you to look at it in that light, will it? And it'll give me the position of starting from the line. Is that right?"

"Yes," Margaret answered, smiling. "Slang 'right' and English 'right!' You ask for a fair field and no favor, and you shall have it."

"Tossed All Night?"

It's a pretty tough, isn't it, when you can't sleep at night? You feel a long way from fit next day and as a consequence your work suffers. It's an expensive business—is this insomnia.

next morning, when his secretary would come as usual, he opened it out of mere curiosity to know whence it came.

It was from Mr. Pinney, the jeweler, and it contained a full and conscientious account of the whole affair of the theft, from the moment when Logothetis and Van Torp had gone out together until Mr. Pinney had locked up the stone in his safe again, and Baraka and Spira had been lodged in Brixton jail. The envelope contained also a cutting from the newspaper similar to the one Margaret had received from Lady Maud.

Logothetis laid the letter on the table and looked at his watch. It was now a quarter-past six, and old-fashioned shops like Pinney's close rather early in the dull season, when few customers are to be expected and the days are not so long as they have been. In the latter part of August, in London, the sun sets soon after seven o'clock, and Logothetis realized that he had no time to lose.

As he drove quickly up towards Bond street, he ran over the circumstances in his mind, and came to the conclusion that Baraka had probably been the victim of a trick, though he did not exclude the bare possibility that she might be guilty.

He found Mr. Pinney in the act of turning the discs of the safe before going home and leaving his shopman to shut up the place. He smiled with grave satisfaction when Logothetis entered.

"I was hoping to see you, sir," he said. "I presume that you had my letter? I wrote out the account with great care, as you may imagine, but I shall be happy to go over the story with you if there is any point that is not clear."

Logothetis did not wish to hear it; he wished to see the ruby. Mr. Pinney turned the discs again to their places, stuck the little key into the secret keyhole which then revealed itself, turned it three times to the left and five times to the right, and opened the heavy iron door. The safe was an old-fashioned one that had belonged to his father before him. He got out the Japanese tin box, opened that, and produced the stone, still in its paper, for it was too thick to be put into one of Mr. Pinney's favorite pill boxes.

Logothetis undid the paper, took out the big uncut ruby, laid it in the palm of his hand, and looked at it critically, turning it over with one finger from time to time. He took it to the door of the shop, where the evening light was stronger, and examined it with the greatest care. Still he did not seem satisfied.

"Let me have your lens, Mr. Pinney," he said, "and some electric light and a sheet of white paper."

Mr. Pinney turned up a strong drop light that stood on the counter, and produced the paper and a magnifier.

"It's a grand ruby," he said.

"I see it is," Logothetis answered rather curtly.

"Do you mean to say," asked the surprised jeweler, "that you had bought it without thoroughly examining it—without who are an expert?"

"No, that's not what I mean," answered the Greek, bending over the ruby and scrutinizing it through the strong magnifier.

Mr. Pinney felt himself snubbed, which had not happened to him for a long time, and he drew himself up with dignity. A minute passed, and Logothetis did not look up; another and Mr. Pinney grew nervous; a few seconds more, and he received a shock that took away his breath.

"This is not my ruby," said Logothetis, looking up, and speaking with perfect confidence.

"Not—your—ruby!" Mr. Pinney's jaw dropped. "But—" He could get no further.

"I'm sorry," Logothetis said calmly. "I'm very sorry, for several reasons. Though it's not the stone I brought you, but it's just as large, and most extraordinarily like it."

"But how do you know, sir?" gasped the jeweler.

"Because I'm an expert, as you were good enough to say just now."

"Yes, sir. But I am an expert, too, and to the best of my expert belief this is the stone you left with me to be cut the day before yesterday. I've examined it most thoroughly."

"No doubt," answered the Greek. "But you hadn't examined mine thoroughly before it was stolen, had you? You had only looked at it with me, on the counter here."

"That is correct, sir," said Mr. Pinney nervously. "That is quite true."

"Very well. But I did more than merely look at it through a lens or weigh it. I did not care so much about the weight, but I cared very much for the water, and I tried the ruby point on it in the usual way, but it was too hard, and then I scratched it in two places with the diamond, more out of curiosity than for any other reason."

"You marked it, sir? There's not a single scratch on this one! Merciful Providence! Merciful Providence!"

"Yes," Logothetis said gravely. "The girl spoke the truth. She had two stones much larger than the rest when she first came to me in Paris, this one and another. They were almost exactly alike, and she wanted me to buy both, but I did not want them, and she still had it; and, as far as I know, it is her legal property, and mine is gone. The thief was one of those two young fellows who came in just when Mr. Van Torp and I went out. I remember thinking what nice-looking boys they were!"

Refuses to Disobey Sultan.
Tangier, Sept. 22.—The Spanish minister here has demanded the withdrawal of the note sent by the foreign board to the powers protesting against Spain's attitude in the Rif territory and asking for intervention by the powers. In reply to the Spanish minister, Sidi Mohammed Gabbas, the Moroccan foreign minister, said that he could not disobey the sultan.

Panic Averted by Police.
New York, Sept. 22.—The cry of "fire" brought 1,500 people to their feet in the Lyric theater in Hoboken last night, but with the reassuring shouts of the police and attendants they sank back relieved and a panic was averted. A quarrel in the gallery brought forth the cry. There was not the slightest suspicion of a blaze.

A Delicious, Nourishing Meal for 5 Cents

YOU don't believe it, do you? Here it is: Take two SHREDDED WHEAT BISCUITS; heat them in the oven to restore crispness, pour hot milk over them; add a little cream and salt to suit the taste. Or, if you don't like milk, try it this way: Heat two Biscuits in oven to restore crispness; then dip them quickly in salt water, place a piece of butter on the Biscuit, allowing it to melt into the shreds.

Or, heat the Biscuits in oven, dip them in milk, drain, and fry in butter, after which they may be served with a little cream, if desired.

A little fruit makes the meal even more wholesome and adds little to the cost. Try one of these tomorrow.

Shredded Wheat is made of the choicest selected white wheat, cleaned, steam-cooked and baked. Try it for breakfast to-morrow with milk or cream. The Biscuit is also delicious for any meal in combination with fresh or preserved fruits.

THE HORRORS OF SLEEPING SICKNESS MAY BE BROUGHT TO AMERICA.
Tsetse Fly Enlarged.

Washington.—Are the people of this country, in the interest of science, to be subjected to the ravages of the dangerous tsetse fly?

Common apprehension is expressed that the fatal sleeping sickness of Africa will be introduced here unless scientists at the Smithsonian Institution can be persuaded to destroy large numbers of eggs of the tsetse fly, which have been found in skins shipped to the institution from Africa, being the collection contributed by former President Roosevelt.

In Africa the native population is much more susceptible to the bite of the fly than white people, though a few cases of sleeping sickness have occurred among the comparatively scanty white population of both the east and west coasts.

It was thought for a long time that the bite of the fly, which is a blood-sucking insect, was harmless to man and fatal only to cattle and horses. But it was afterward discovered that the fly carried the germ of the sleeping sickness, which has so greatly extended in Africa recently and has played such havoc among the natives.

The tsetse fly carries the sleeping sickness much as the mosquito carries yellow fever. The fly in the course of its development lays its eggs under the hides of horses and cattle, which quickly succumb to the bite. The greatest carrier of the eggs is the rabbit, two specimens of which have been found in the collection.

There are numerous eggs of the fly still clinging to the hides and it is from these that the native flies might come. It is so happens that the skins of the small animals in the collection were not packed in burlap, but were merely stretched and dried in the shade, so that the eggs are in perfect condition.

Whether the disease the fly carries is hereditary and inherent in the fly itself or whether, like the yellow fever mosquito, it has to bite a victim of the sleeping sickness to develop the infection in its body, is the problem confronting the scientists.

There is one dangerous risk trafficking with the tsetse fly in captivity and that is that it may escape and spread infection here. The gypsy moth, which has caused millions of dollars of damage in New England, escaped originally from those being reared for laboratory work. The same thing might happen with the tsetse fly, but all possible precautions will be taken to prevent it.

SCIENCE NOTES

There has been great strides made recently in the construction of aeromotors, or wind turbines. This was demonstrated at the show of the Royal Agricultural Society, which was held at the Agricultural College, London, on September 15th. The aeromotor was shown from which current was supplied for an electric grill, kettles, irons, and fans, as well as a battery of cells, a dynamo, a circular saw, and a deep-well pump. By division of the storage battery into two parts it is possible to use 50-volt current for driving the machine and 25-volt current for lighting, the latter permitting the use of metal filament lamps.

Both the freezing and sterilization processes of preserving milk are objected to on the ground that the chemical effect of the acids is changed during the process. Cooling to a temperature slightly above the freezing point has the advantage of leaving undisturbed the homogeneity, flavor, digestibility and nutritive value of the milk, and when the cooled milk is again warmed to the temperature of the air it is found to have undergone no alteration that can be detected by the microscope or chemical or biological tests. Besides, the cooling checks the multiplication of bacteria. The milk should be cooled immediately after it is drawn, or after pasteurization or boiling if these processes are adopted. When the milk is cooled to 32° F. it may be kept several days at any temperature less than 52° F.

The latest scheme for the revision of the calendar calls for the addition of another month, each one having exactly 28 days. The first of January would be the first day of the new year, and the last day of each month, therefore, falls on a Saturday. The additional month necessary under this system is named by the calendar makers, and it is placed in the calendar between June and July. Thirteen months of 28 days, however, give a total of only 364 days for the year, and, to accommodate the odd day, it is proposed that between Saturday, the last day of December, and Sunday, the first day of January there should be a day to be known as "Anno Day." It is not recognized as a calendar day and, beyond its name, has no other distinction to separate it from the last day of December, or the first day of January. It is a day of special character or agreement. No interest or rental will accrue upon that day, and for all such purposes it would be considered a part of Saturday, December 28. Leap Year is provided for by an extra day between Saturday, Vincent 14 and Sunday, Vincent 15. This would be known as "Midnight Day" and it would be treated in all respects similarly to Anno Day.

An electric rat trap has been invented by a German, which has been used in the municipal electric light station of Charlottenburg with great success. The rats are lured into a box by a sizzling coil and, as they enter, the current is automatically turned on and the rat is electrocuted. When this has been done a signal lamp indicates that the trap is to be adjusted again.

BUILDING AND CONTRACTING.

Modern Flat and Steel.
Auer von Weibach, the well-known inventor of the incombustible gas mantle, has produced an alloy of iron and thorium which possesses remarkable properties. When struck against a piece of iron this alloy emits exceedingly bright sparks, produced by the almost instantaneous oxidation of particles detached by the blow. Sufficiently heated to develop the repeated efforts required by the old-fashioned flint and steel. The new thorium "flint," indeed, may be called an everlasting match. It will be very useful to explorers and tourists and should be of great value for the ignition of explosives, for military and other purposes.

Mr. Blank "Will Oblige."
At a court of justice in Australia much frequented by Chinese a newly appointed clerk was ordered by the judge to summon a witness to the stand. "Call for Ah Song," was the command. The clerk was puzzled for a moment. He glanced shyly at the judge, but found him quite grave. Then he turned to the spectators. "Gentlemen," he asked, "would any of you favor his lordship with a song?"—Shanghai Times.
